Same Calories, Two Very Different Days

Visual Demo · Pattern-interrupt angle

FORMAT	LENGTH	CHANNEL	OBJECTIVE
Visual Demo	25-35 sec	Meta Ads (IG + FB)	Lead Gen

01 THE HOOK

“These two breakfasts have the same calories. Only one of them gets you to lunch without raiding the snack drawer.”

02 CORE MESSAGE

Left: a muffin and a vanilla latte. Gone in four minutes.

Right: eggs, toast, fruit and Greek yogurt. Same calories. Way more food.

My name's Nate. I've been coaching busy professionals here in Tampa for over 10 years, and this is what most people are never shown.

It's not about eating less. It's about knowing what to put on the plate, so your day runs on food instead of willpower.

That's what I build with my clients: a plan around the food you already like and the schedule you actually have.

03 CALL TO ACTION

“If you want a plan built around your real life, tap the link and let's talk.”

DIRECTOR'S NOTE

Open on the two plates side by side, overhead, no intro. Put the calorie number on each plate on screen (weigh them so they truly match). Then cut to Nate at eye level. Show food only: no bodies, no scale, no measuring tape.

You Don't Need Another Diet

Talking Head · Contrarian angle

FORMAT	LENGTH	CHANNEL	OBJECTIVE
Talking Head	25-35 sec	Meta Ads (IG + FB)	Lead Gen

01 THE HOOK

“Unpopular opinion from a nutrition coach: another diet is the last thing you need.”

02 CORE MESSAGE

Every diet works for about three weeks. Then a work dinner, a birthday, a busy Tuesday... and it's over.

That's not a discipline problem. Diets aren't built for real life.

I'm Nate. I coach busy professionals here in Tampa, and I don't hand out meal plans you'll quit by Friday.

We build habits around your schedule, your family and the food you enjoy, with a weekly check-in so you never figure it out alone.

No foods off the table. Just a plan you can actually keep.

03 CALL TO ACTION

“If you're done starting over every Monday, tap the link and we'll talk.”

DIRECTOR'S NOTE

Say the hook straight into the lens with a half-smile, like you know it's a bold take. Pause after "real life." Kitchen or clean office background. Talk about habits and food, never about weight or body changes.

What A Busy Day Of Eating Actually Looks Like

Day-in-the-life · Relatable angle

FORMAT	LENGTH	CHANNEL	OBJECTIVE
Day-in-the-life	30-40 sec	Meta Ads (IG + FB)	Lead Gen

01 THE HOOK

“Back-to-back meetings, no time to cook... here's how my clients still eat well on days like this.”

02 CORE MESSAGE

7am: coffee and a protein shake in the car. Done.

Lunch between calls: a grocery-store wrap and a piece of fruit. Five minutes.

4pm: the snack that keeps you from ordering takeout at 9.

Dinner: something you actually like, ready in fifteen minutes.

I'm Nate, nutrition coach for busy professionals in Tampa. No perfect days needed. Just a simple plan that works on the messy ones.

03 CALL TO ACTION

“Want a plan like this built for your schedule? Tap the link and let's talk.”

DIRECTOR'S NOTE

Quick cuts every 2-3 seconds, real locations (car, office, grocery store, kitchen), phone in hand, time on screen for each moment. Food and hands only, no body shots. Close on Nate to camera for the last line.
