FUEL

01 THE HOOK

"If you're "good" all day and then lose it every night, you're not weak. You're hungry."

02 CORE MESSAGE

Most busy adults skip breakfast, grab something small at lunch, and call it discipline. Then 8pm hits and the kitchen wins.

That's not a lack of self-control. That's a body that went ten hours on almost nothing, doing exactly what it's designed to do.

The fix isn't eating less at night. It's eating enough during the day, so night never turns into a fight.

I'm Nate. I coach busy adults on nutrition, and the first thing I fix for most clients isn't what they eat at dinner. It's what they didn't eat before it.

03 CALL TO ACTION

"DM me FUEL and I'll show you how I build a day that doesn't fall apart at night."

DIRECTOR'S NOTE

Open almost confessional, like you're letting them in on something. The turn is "you're not weak, you're hungry": give it a beat, it's the line people will screenshot. Calm, zero judgment.

WEEKEND

01 THE HOOK

"Five good days and two "off" days isn't a 70% plan. For a lot of people, it's a zero."

02 CORE MESSAGE

Monday to Friday you're locked in. Then Friday night turns into Sunday night, and the weekend quietly cancels out everything the week built.

The answer isn't giving up your weekends. It's to stop treating them like a break from the plan, and start making them part of it.

Pick the one meal you're actually looking forward to. Enjoy it fully, no guilt. Keep the rest of the weekend simple.

I'm Nate, nutrition coach for busy adults. My clients don't lose their weekends. They just stop letting two days decide the other five.

03 CALL TO ACTION

"DM me WEEKEND and I'll send you the exact weekend rules I give my clients."

DIRECTOR'S NOTE

Record it on a Friday or Saturday if you can, it feels timely. Light and relatable, not preachy: you love weekends too. Say "no guilt" like you mean it.

SWAP

01 THE HOOK

"You're eating "healthy" and nothing's changing. These might be the reason."

02 CORE MESSAGE

The smoothie with three fruits, nut butter and honey. The granola that's basically dessert. The salad with half a cup of dressing. The coffee drink that's really a milkshake.

None of these are bad foods. But they're labeled healthy, so nobody counts them, and together they can add up to a whole extra meal every day without you noticing.

I'm Nate. I coach busy adults on nutrition, and I don't take these foods away from my clients. I show them the swaps that keep the taste and cut the hidden extras.

Healthy and helpful aren't always the same thing.

03 CALL TO ACTION

"DM me SWAP and I'll send you my top 5 swaps."

DIRECTOR'S NOTE

Show each food on screen as you name it (B-roll or holding it up in the kitchen). Quick rhythm on the list, then slow down for "none of these are bad foods". Never shame the food or the person.

CARBS

01 THE HOOK

"Carbs didn't make you gain weight. And cutting them is why it keeps coming back for so many people."

02 CORE MESSAGE

Going no-carb feels great for two weeks, mostly because you're losing water. Then a birthday, a pasta night, a vacation, and it all comes back, plus the guilt.

Carbs were never the problem. Eating them without a plan was.

Rice, potatoes, bread, fruit. My clients eat all of it. The difference is they know how much, and what to pair it with.

I'm Nate, nutrition coach for busy adults. A plan without the foods you love isn't a plan you'll keep. It's just a countdown to quitting.

03 CALL TO ACTION

"DM me CARBS and I'll show you how my clients eat them and still make progress."

DIRECTOR'S NOTE

Confident, slightly playful. Could hold a bowl of rice or a slice of bread for the hook, it stops the scroll. Land "a countdown to quitting" slowly and stop there.

MENU

01 THE HOOK

"You don't have to skip dinner with friends to stay on track. You just need three rules."

02 CORE MESSAGE

One: decide before you get there. Check the menu ahead of time, so you're not choosing while you're starving.

Two: pick your one. The drink, the bread, or the dessert. Enjoy one of them fully, not all three halfway.

Three: stop at satisfied, not stuffed. Restaurant portions aren't a challenge you have to finish.

I'm Nate. I coach busy adults on nutrition, and eating out is where most of my clients think they'll fail. It usually ends up being where they feel the most confident.

03 CALL TO ACTION

"DM me MENU and I'll send you my full dining-out guide."

DIRECTOR'S NOTE

Count the rules on your fingers, it keeps people watching to the end. Film at a restaurant table or in the car before dinner if possible. Practical, quick, friendly.

LIST

01 THE HOOK

"Most of your diet gets decided right here, not in your kitchen."

02 CORE MESSAGE

If it's in your house, you'll eat it eventually. Not because you're weak. Because you're tired, busy, and it's right there.

Which means the most important nutrition decision of your week happens in about forty minutes, pushing a cart.

My clients shop from one simple list: proteins, easy carbs, fruit and veggies, and two snacks they actually love. So the easy choice at home is already the right one.

I'm Nate, nutrition coach for busy adults. I don't ask my clients to fight the food in their house. I help them change what's waiting for them there.

03 CALL TO ACTION

"DM me LIST and I'll send you the grocery list template I give my clients."

DIRECTOR'S NOTE

Film walking through a grocery store aisle with a cart, phone at chest height. Point at shelves naturally. Relaxed weekend energy, like you're shopping together.

APPLY

01 THE HOOK

"People keep asking what coaching with me actually looks like. Here's the honest version."

02 CORE MESSAGE

Weeks one to four: we build your plan around your schedule and the food you already eat, and lock in the first few habits. Nothing extreme.

Weeks five to eight: we adjust every week based on your check-ins, so nothing stalls and nothing feels forced.

Weeks nine to twelve: we make it yours. How to eat out, travel, and handle a rough week without needing me.

I'm Nate. I coach busy adults on nutrition, and I only take ten new clients a month, so every plan gets real attention.

03 CALL TO ACTION

"DM me APPLY and let's see if you're a fit for this month."

DIRECTOR'S NOTE

The clearest, most structured video of the week: hold up one, two, three fingers or use on-screen text for each phase. Calm and confident, no hype. Pause before the CTA.
