Daily Marketing Tips

One tip a day · 25-40 seconds · Talking head · English · 30-day playbook

THE IDEA

A daily series where Maison Enterprises teaches one marketing idea per video: a psychology trick, a famous brand's move, or a tactic people can use today. It's built to reach people who don't follow us yet (sends), earn the trust of business owners (saves), and turn viewers into followers (the series). It runs alongside the longer educational and ad scripts.

WHAT THE ALGORITHM REWARDS RIGHT NOW

01

Watch time

How much of the video people watch, and whether they rewatch it. Short, tight videos that end before people expect win here.

02

Sends per reach

Reported as the strongest signal for reaching non-followers. A DM share tells Instagram "show this to strangers."

03

Likes per reach

Matters most with people who already follow. Saves and follows confirm the account is worth seeing again.

THE FORMATS THAT PULL THE MOST VIEWS IN MARKETING

FORMAT	WHY IT WORKS	BUILT FOR
Marketing psychology	"The trick brands use on you." Studies and pricing tricks everyone has felt. Interesting to people who aren't marketers too, so it travels far and gets sent.	Sends · reach
Brand breakdown	"How Costco / Liquid Death / Spotify did X." Famous brands make people curious in the first second and work on cold audiences.	Sends · new followers
One tactic, do it today	One specific thing to change today, with a real example. The format buyers save, and the one that builds trust with future clients.	Saves · leads
Myth / contrarian	"Stop doing X." Goes against a common belief, backed by a reason. Gets debate going in the comments.	Comments
Platform insider	A feature or rule on Instagram or Meta that most people don't know. Feels like a secret, so people save it and come back.	Saves · follows
The series itself	"Marketing Tip #12." Numbering every video and ending with "tomorrow..." gives people a reason to follow instead of just watching once.	Follows

THE MIX FOR THE 30 DAYS

About 40% psychology and brand breakdowns (reach and new followers), 45% tactics and platform insider tips (saves and trust from buyers), and 15% comment or DM prompts (conversations and leads). No two videos from the same category on consecutive days.

Anatomy of a daily tip

0-2s
Hook
Spoken line, on-screen text (max 6 words) and a strong first image, all saying the same thing. No “hi, I'm...”, no logo intro.

2-6s
Stakes
Why it matters: a number, a famous brand or a mistake they're making. Open a loop that the end closes.

6-30s
One idea
One example with real names and numbers, then the “do this” line. One idea per video, never a list of ten.

Last 3s
Close
One ask that matches the goal: send, save, follow or comment. Rotate them. End before people expect it.

EDITING · RECOMMENDED TEMPLATE

Cutout Backdrop Reel (the “green screen” style). You're cut out and placed over full-screen images that change with every idea: the Economist ad, the Costco hot dog, the Spotify Wrapped screens. It's the look the most-watched brand breakdown creators use, it needs no B-roll and no green screen, and the real brands on screen do the hooking.

It also keeps the daily tips looking different from the longer Glass Explainer videos, so the feed has two series people recognize.

EDITING · SPECS

- 25-40 seconds. Every silence and breath between sentences cut.
- A new backdrop every idea, roughly every 3-5 seconds. Real images, no watermarks.
- Captions 3-6 words, always in the same spot, the key word in gold.
- Series label “MARKETING TIP #01” in the corner of the first frame, the same on every video.
- Quiet sound effects on reveals. No music, or music very low under the voice.

RECORDING

- Same set-up as the other scripts (vertical, 4K, lav mic, light in front).
- For the cut-out: a plain wall, nothing dark touching your outline, and a top that isn't black.
- Batch it: record 7-10 tips in one session, one file per tip. Same outfit is fine, it's a series.
- Say the numbers slowly and look at the lens on the hook.

POSTING AND REVIEW

- Same time every day. The series label and the time make it a habit.
- Use Trial Reels for the riskier hooks before sharing to followers.
- After 48 hours, log each tip: 3-second hold, average watch time, sends, saves, follows.
- Every Sunday: make more of the top three topics, drop the bottom three.

Hook bank

20 formulas that work in the marketing niche, with an example for each. Mix them with any tip.

#	FORMULA	EXAMPLE
01	Hidden reason	“Costco hasn't raised this price since 1985. It's not generosity.”
02	Weird result	“This option nobody bought almost tripled sales of the expensive one.”
03	Stop doing	“Stop collecting testimonials that say 'amazing service'.”
04	It's not X, it's Y	“Your emails aren't being ignored. Your subject lines are.”
05	Free secret	“You can see every ad your competitor is running. For free.”
06	Specific number	“One word got 94% of people to say yes.”
07	Callout	“If you have a local business, this matters more than your website.”
08	Myth bust	“9.99 still works, and it's not because people are dumb.”
09	Unexpected brand	“This company sells water in a can. It's worth a billion.”
10	Before you…	“Before you raise your ad budget, do this math.”
11	The one most miss	“There are three ways to do this. The third one, nobody does.”
12	Hidden feature	“Instagram has a button that tests your reel on strangers first.”
13	You're doing it…	“You're still picking interests in your ads like it's 2019.”
14	Your ___ is hiding	“Your best ad copy is hiding in your one-star reviews.”
15	Story start	“A car burned down, and a cup brand had its best week.”
16	What X won't do	“Posting every day won't make you viral. Here's what it will do.”
17	Comparison	“Same offer, different words, way more people take it.”
18	Ownership	“Your next 30 videos are already in your comments.”
19	Cost	“Fake countdown timers are quietly killing your brand.”
20	Insider question	“Why does everyone say 'comment GUIDE' at the end of their videos?”

Research sources. Most public guidance on the algorithm comes from Instagram's head Adam Mosseri as reported by marketing outlets; specific percentages from those outlets are directional, not official.
Instagram ranking signals (watch time, likes and sends per reach), Adam Mosseri, as reported in: dataslayer.ai/blog/instagram-algorithm-2025-complete-guide-for-marketers · highstyle.ai/insights/instagram-reels-algorithm-2026
Short-form trends and hook timing: rightblogger.com/blog/short-form-video-tips · blog.mean.ceo/short-form-video-marketing-trends-june-2026 · vidiq.com/blog/post/viral-video-hooks-youtube-shorts
Educational formats and goal-based scoring (sends / saves / comments): viral.app/blog/guides/how-to-make-a-reel-go-viral · influish.com/blog/viral-content-reel-ideas-for-2026-formats-hooks-and-strategies
Talking-head editing and pacing: viberoll.questera.ai/learn/talking-head-video-editing-checklist · opus.pro/blog/video-editing-tips
Meta Andromeda and creative-led targeting: segwise.ai/blog/meta-andromeda-update-creative-strategy-2026 · flighted.co/blog/meta-ads-strategy-for-dtc-brands

MARKETING TIP #01

DAY 1 OF 30

The Option Nobody Buys

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Psychology	25-40 sec	Sends	The option nobody buys

HOOK

This option nobody bought made the expensive plan sell almost three times more.

SCRIPT

The Economist offered three subscriptions. Web only for 59 dollars. Print only for 125. And print plus web, also for 125.

Nobody picked print only. But in Dan Ariely's study, with that option on the page, 84% chose the most expensive plan. Without it, only 32% did.

That's the decoy effect: an option that exists only to make your best offer look like a no-brainer.

If you sell packages, add one that costs almost the same as your premium, but gives clearly less.

CLOSE

Follow, there's a new marketing tip here every single day.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

The Economist subscription ad · Dan Ariely's book Predictably Irrational · bar chart 32% vs. 84% · a three-tier pricing page

MARKETING TIP #02

DAY 2 OF 30

The Number Instagram Cares About Most

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Content	25-40 sec	Sends	It's not likes

HOOK

The number Instagram cares about most isn't likes. It's sends.

SCRIPT

Adam Mosseri, the head of Instagram, has said the biggest signals are watch time, likes and sends. And sends matter most for reaching people who don't follow you yet.

A like says 'nice'. A send says 'you need to see this'. That's what pushes a video to strangers.

So before you post, ask one question: who would someone send this to?

If you can't name that person, the video isn't finished.

CLOSE

Now you know what to do. Send this to someone who posts for a business.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

Adam Mosseri · Instagram share button with the paper plane highlighted · a DM thread with a reel being sent · insights screen with 'shares'

MARKETING TIP #03

DAY 3 OF 30

Costco's 1.50 Hot Dog

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Brand Breakdown	25-40 sec	Sends	Why it's still $1.50

HOOK

Costco hasn't raised the price of this hot dog since 1985. That's not generosity. It's strategy.

SCRIPT

The hot dog and soda combo has cost 1.50 for decades. Costco barely makes anything on it, if anything at all.

But it's not about the hot dog. It's a promise: at Costco, prices are fair. Every member who sees that price trusts the rest of the store a little more.

That's a loss leader: something sold at cost, or below, to bring people in and earn their trust.

So what's your 1.50 hot dog? A cheap first product, a free audit, a starter offer that makes the next purchase easy.

CLOSE

Follow for a new marketing tip every day.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

Costco food court hot dog combo sign · Costco warehouse · price tag $1.50 with 1985 · a 'free audit' offer card

MARKETING TIP #04

DAY 4 OF 30

The Click You Pay For Twice

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Ads	25-40 sec	Saves	Your ad ≠ your page

HOOK

If your ad and your landing page say different things, you're paying for the same click twice.

SCRIPT

Someone clicks an ad about 30% off running shoes, and lands on your homepage. Now they have to go looking. Most won't.

The rule is message match: the first thing they see after the click repeats the exact promise of the ad. Same words, same image, same offer.

One ad, one page, one button.

Fixing this often lowers your cost per sale more than launching a new ad.

CLOSE

Save this and check your ads against your pages today.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

A shoe ad '30% off running shoes' · a generic homepage with a red X · a matching landing page with the same headline and image · one big button

MARKETING TIP #05

DAY 5 OF 30

Your Best Copy Is In Your Reviews

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
AI	25-40 sec	Saves	Steal from your reviews

HOOK

Your best ad copy is hiding in your one-star and five-star reviews.

SCRIPT

Copy your reviews into ChatGPT or Claude and ask three things.

What words do customers use to describe the problem? What almost stopped them from buying? What result do they mention the most?

The five-stars give you your promise. The one-stars give you the objections your ads need to answer.

Your customer's words will always beat your marketing words.

CLOSE

Save this for the next time you write an ad.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

A wall of real-looking product reviews (5 and 1 stars) · an AI chat with reviews pasted in · highlighted customer phrases turning into ad headlines

MARKETING TIP #06

DAY 6 OF 30

Why $9.99 Still Works

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Psychology	25-40 sec	Saves	$9.99 vs. $10

HOOK

9.99 still works. And it's not because people are dumb.

SCRIPT

Your brain reads a price from left to right, and it decides fast. It sees the 9 before the 99, so 9.99 feels closer to 9 than to 10.

That's the left-digit effect, and it's strongest when the first digit changes: 19.99 versus 20, 199 versus 200.

But there's a catch. Round prices feel premium. That's why luxury brands charge 200, not 199.99.

Selling on value or impulse? End in 9. Selling on prestige? Keep it round.

CLOSE

Save this for the next time you set a price.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

Supermarket price tags ending in .99 · a luxury store window with round prices · the digits 1|99 vs 2|00 animated

MARKETING TIP #07

DAY 7 OF 30

Water In A Can

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Brand Breakdown	25-40 sec	Sends	It's just water

HOOK

This company sells water in a can, and it was valued at over a billion dollars.

SCRIPT

Liquid Death sells water. Just water. But they sell it like a heavy metal band: skulls, 'murder your thirst', merch, and some of the strangest ads on the internet.

They didn't invent a new product. They gave a boring product a personality people want to be seen with.

In 2024 they were valued at 1.4 billion dollars.

If your product is the same as your competitors', your brand can't be. Give people a reason to post you.

CLOSE

Follow, tomorrow there's another one.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

Liquid Death cans · 'Murder your thirst' branding · Liquid Death merch · headline about the $1.4B valuation · a plain water bottle for contrast

MARKETING TIP #08

DAY 8 OF 30

Your Hook Is Three Things

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Content	25-40 sec	Saves	1 hook = 3 parts

HOOK

Your hook isn't one thing. It's three.

SCRIPT

What you say. The text on screen. And what people see in the first second.

The best videos line up all three. Spoken: 'Stop boosting your posts.' On screen: 'Boosting is wasting your money.' And the visual: your finger hitting the boost button.

Most people scroll with the sound off. If your text and your image don't hook them, your words never get heard.

Before you post, watch the first second on mute. If it doesn't make sense, fix it.

CLOSE

Save this and check your next video on mute.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

Three layers labeled Say / Show / Write stacking up · the Instagram 'Boost post' button · a phone with the mute icon

MARKETING TIP #09

DAY 9 OF 30

Spy On Your Competitors' Ads For Free

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Ads + AI	25-40 sec	Saves	See every ad they run

HOOK

You can see every ad your competitor is running right now. For free.

SCRIPT

It's called the Meta Ad Library. Search their brand and you'll see every active ad on Facebook and Instagram.

Look at the ones that have been running the longest. Nobody keeps paying for an ad that doesn't sell, so those are their winners.

Then paste those ads into an AI and ask: what angles, promises and offers keep repeating?

Don't copy them. Find the angle nobody in your market is using yet.

CLOSE

Save this, and send it to whoever runs your ads.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

Screen recording of the Meta Ad Library search · an ad's 'Started running on' date highlighted · AI chat summarizing angles

MARKETING TIP #10

DAY 10 OF 30

'Thousands Of Happy Customers'

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Sales	25-40 sec	Saves	Vague proof = no proof

HOOK

'Thousands of happy customers' is the weakest line on your website.

SCRIPT

Vague proof sounds made up. Specific proof sounds real.

'Thousands of customers' becomes '12,417 orders shipped this year.' 'Great results' becomes 'Maria cut her ad costs by 38% in six weeks.'

Exact, odd numbers feel counted, not invented.

Go through your site today and replace every vague claim with a number, a name or a date. Real ones.

CLOSE

Follow for a new marketing tip every day.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

A website section saying 'Thousands of happy customers' crossed out · rewritten version with 12,417 · a testimonial card with a name and result

MARKETING TIP #11

DAY 11 OF 30

The 429 Dollar Bread Maker

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Psychology	25-40 sec	Sends	Show the big price first

HOOK

Williams-Sonoma added a product almost nobody bought, and sales of the cheaper one nearly doubled.

SCRIPT

They sold a bread maker for 279 dollars. Sales were slow. Then they added a bigger model for 429.

Few people bought the 429. But next to it, the 279 suddenly looked reasonable, and its sales nearly doubled.

That's anchoring. The first price people see becomes the ruler for everything after it.

So show your highest price first. On your pricing page, on your sales calls, on your menu.

CLOSE

Send this to someone who's about to set their prices.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

Williams-Sonoma storefront · two bread makers side by side with $279 and $429 tags · a ruler graphic over prices · a pricing page with the premium tier first

MARKETING TIP #12

DAY 12 OF 30

Millions Of Free Ads Every December

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Brand Breakdown	25-40 sec	Sends	Free ads from customers

HOOK

Every December, millions of people do Spotify's marketing for free.

SCRIPT

Spotify Wrapped turns your own listening data into a story about you: your top songs, your minutes, your music personality. And it's sized perfectly for your stories.

People aren't sharing an ad. They're sharing themselves. Spotify just puts its logo on it.

You can do a small version. A year in review for your clients, a results report, a milestone badge.

Make it about them, and make it easy to post.

CLOSE

Follow, a new tip goes up every day.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

Spotify Wrapped story screens · an Instagram story feed full of Wrapped posts · a mock client 'Year with us' card

MARKETING TIP #13

DAY 13 OF 30

Test A Reel On Strangers First

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Content	25-40 sec	Saves	Instagram's hidden test button

HOOK

Instagram has a button that tests your reel on strangers before your followers ever see it.

SCRIPT

It's called Trial Reels. The video goes out only to people who don't follow you.

You see how it performs with a cold audience, and then you decide whether to share it with your followers. Or you let Instagram do it if it performs well.

That means you can test a risky hook or a new format without hurting your account's numbers.

Use it for the ideas you're not sure about. Those are usually the ones that surprise you.

CLOSE

Save this for the next video you're unsure about.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

Screen recording of the Trial toggle when sharing a reel · a 'non-followers only' label · insights of a trial reel

MARKETING TIP #14

DAY 14 OF 30

The Ad That Compares For Them

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Ads	25-40 sec	Saves	Old way vs. new way

HOOK

One of the simplest ads that still works: put your product next to the alternative.

SCRIPT

Split screen. On one side, what people use now. On the other, your product. Then compare the three things they care about: price, time and result.

It works because nobody buys in a vacuum. They're always comparing, so do it for them.

Never trash a competitor by name. Compare against the old way: the gym membership versus your home program, the agency versus your software.

Make the difference obvious in under three seconds.

CLOSE

Save this and try it on your next ad.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

A split-screen ad mock-up: Old way vs. New way with three rows (price, time, result) and checkmarks

MARKETING TIP #15

DAY 15 OF 30

Testimonials That Sell

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Sales	25-40 sec	Saves	Stop collecting 'Amazing!'

HOOK

Stop collecting testimonials that just say 'amazing service'.

SCRIPT

The testimonials that sell answer an objection. 'I thought I was too old to start.' 'I was sure it wouldn't work in my industry.'

So ask your clients three questions. What almost stopped you from buying? What happened after? What would you tell someone who's on the fence?

Now every testimonial does a job your salesperson normally does.

Put them right next to the objection they answer: on your pricing page, under your button, in your sales follow-up.

CLOSE

Send this to whoever collects your reviews.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

A generic '5 stars, amazing!' review crossed out · three question cards · a pricing page with an objection testimonial under the button

MARKETING TIP #16

DAY 16 OF 30

Don't Lose Your 20 Dollars

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Psychology	25-40 sec	Saves	Same offer, more yeses

HOOK

Same offer, different words, and way more people take it.

SCRIPT

People feel a loss about twice as strongly as a gain of the same size. It's called loss aversion.

So 'Get 20 dollars off' is good. 'Don't lose your 20 dollar credit, it expires Sunday' is better.

Same 20 dollars. But now saying no feels like losing money.

Use it in your abandoned cart emails, your expiring offers and your renewal reminders. As long as it's true.

CLOSE

Follow, tomorrow I'll show you the one word that makes people say yes.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

Two email subject lines side by side · a $20 credit card graphic with an expiring timer · a scale with 'loss' weighing twice as much as 'gain'

MARKETING TIP #17

DAY 17 OF 30

The Word That Gets A Yes

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Psychology	25-40 sec	Sends	One word, 94% yes

HOOK

One word got 94% of people to say yes to a stranger.

SCRIPT

In a Harvard study, a researcher asked to cut the line at a copy machine. 'Can I use the copier?' 60% said yes.

'Can I use it, because I'm in a rush?' 94% said yes.

And here's the wild part: 'because I have to make copies', a reason that says nothing, still got 93%.

People want a reason. So give one: 'Sale ends Friday, because we're making room for the new collection.'

CLOSE

Send this to someone who writes your ads.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

An old office copy machine · a line of people · three speech bubbles with 60%, 94%, 93% · an ad with 'because' highlighted

MARKETING TIP #18

DAY 18 OF 30

The Owl That Took Over TikTok

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Brand Breakdown	25-40 sec	Sends	People follow characters

HOOK

A green owl turned a language app into one of the most followed brands on TikTok.

SCRIPT

Duolingo stopped posting like a company. The owl is a character: dramatic, a little unhinged, and reacting to trends within hours.

People don't follow brands. They follow characters.

You don't need a mascot. You need a consistent voice: how you talk, what you joke about, what you'd never say.

Write those three things down, and post like that every single time.

CLOSE

Follow for tomorrow's tip.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

Duolingo owl mascot · Duolingo TikTok profile · a few of their viral video thumbnails · a 'brand voice' card with three lines

MARKETING TIP #19

DAY 19 OF 30

Why You Can't Stop Watching

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Content	25-40 sec	Saves	Use open loops

HOOK

There's a reason you finish some videos and skip others. It's called an open loop.

SCRIPT

Your brain hates unfinished stories. Psychologists call it the Zeigarnik effect: we remember unfinished things better than finished ones.

Three ways to use it. One: tease your best point early and save it for last. Two: show the result first, then how you got there.

Three is the one most people miss: end by opening the next loop. 'Tomorrow I'll show you...'

That's why series get followers. People come back to close the loop.

CLOSE

Speaking of which, follow, because tomorrow I'll explain why everyone ends their videos with 'comment'.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

A loading circle that never closes · the words 'Zeigarnik effect' · a numbered list where item 3 is blurred until the end · 'Tomorrow...' card

MARKETING TIP #20

DAY 20 OF 30

'Comment GUIDE And I'll Send It'

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Content + Sales	25-40 sec	Comments	Why everyone says 'comment'

HOOK

Why so many accounts say 'comment GUIDE and I'll send it to you'.

SCRIPT

Because it does three things at once. The comments push the post to more people. The DM opens a private conversation. And now you can follow up with an offer.

Tools like ManyChat send the link automatically the second someone comments.

But it only works if what you send is actually worth it. A checklist, a template, a calculator.

Promise something small and useful, then deliver more than they expected.

CLOSE

Comment TIPS and we'll send you our list of the 10 best tips from this series.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

A reel comment section filling up with 'GUIDE' · an automated DM arriving with a link · ManyChat interface · a checklist PDF

MARKETING TIP #21

DAY 21 OF 30

Show The Work

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Psychology	25-40 sec	Sends	Make the work visible

HOOK

Domino's pizza tracker doesn't make your pizza any faster. It makes you happier waiting for it.

SCRIPT

Researchers at Harvard found people value a service more when they can see the work being done, even when it takes longer. It's called the labor illusion.

That's why travel sites show 'searching 300 airlines', and Domino's shows your pizza going into the oven.

If you do work your customers never see, show it.

A behind-the-scenes of their order, a progress update, the 40 hours behind the deliverable they're about to get.

CLOSE

Follow, there's a new tip every day.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

Domino's Pizza Tracker screen · a flight search 'searching 300 airlines' loader · behind-the-scenes of an order being packed · a progress update message

MARKETING TIP #22

DAY 22 OF 30

Subject Lines That Get Opened

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
E-commerce	25-40 sec	Saves	Write it like a text

HOOK

Your emails aren't being ignored. Your subject lines are.

SCRIPT

Write them like a text from a friend. Short, lowercase, curious. 'quick question.' 'did you see this?' 'this surprised me.'

Avoid anything that looks like an ad: all caps, three emojis, 'HUGE SALE INSIDE'.

And test it. Send two subject lines to a small part of your list, and the winner goes to everyone else. Most email tools do this automatically.

One better subject line, every email, for the rest of the year.

CLOSE

Save this for your next email.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

An inbox with an 'ad-looking' subject line vs. a lowercase friendly one · the A/B test screen of an email tool · open rate number going up

MARKETING TIP #23

DAY 23 OF 30

The Car Fire That Sold Cups

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Brand Breakdown	25-40 sec	Sends	A car burned. Cups sold.

HOOK

A car burned down, and a cup brand had the best week of its year.

SCRIPT

In 2023, a woman posted her car after a fire. Almost everything inside was destroyed, except her Stanley cup, still with ice in it. The video went massively viral.

Within days, Stanley's president posted a reply and offered to replace her car.

They didn't create the moment. They showed up fast, and turned one customer's video into one of the brand stories of the year.

Watch what your customers post about you. When something takes off, respond in hours, not weeks.

CLOSE

Send this to whoever runs your brand's socials.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

A burned car interior · a Stanley tumbler · the reply video from Stanley's president (screenshot) · a notification feed exploding

MARKETING TIP #24

DAY 24 OF 30

Your Next 30 Videos

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Content	25-40 sec	Saves	Ideas are in your comments

HOOK

Your next 30 videos are already sitting in your comments.

SCRIPT

Every question in your comments, DMs and sales calls is a video someone already asked for.

Reply to the comment with a video. Instagram and TikTok both let you do it, and the person who asked usually shares it.

Keep a note on your phone. Every time someone asks the same thing twice, it becomes a video.

You'll never run out of ideas again, and every one of them has a built-in audience.

CLOSE

Comment your biggest marketing question, and it could be tomorrow's tip.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

A comment section with questions highlighted · the 'reply with reel' button · a phone notes app with a growing list of ideas

MARKETING TIP #25

DAY 25 OF 30

24 Jams vs. 6 Jams

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Psychology	25-40 sec	Sends	Fewer options, more sales

HOOK

Give customers fewer options and they buy more. A grocery store proved it with jam.

SCRIPT

In a famous study, a store showed 24 jams on one day and 6 on another. The big table got more people to stop.

But the small one sold way more: about 30% of people bought, versus 3%.

Too many choices and people freeze, then leave 'to think about it'.

Look at your store or your offer. If someone needs more than ten seconds to pick, cut options, or tell them exactly which one to choose.

CLOSE

Follow for a new tip every day.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

A tasting table with 24 jars vs. one with 6 · the numbers 3% and 30% · a website menu with too many options vs. a 'Most popular' badge

MARKETING TIP #26

DAY 26 OF 30

One Video, A Week Of Content

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Content + AI	25-40 sec	Saves	1 video = 5 posts

HOOK

One video should give you a full week of content.

SCRIPT

Record one 60-second video. That's your reel. The best line becomes a quote post. The steps become a carousel.

The hook becomes an email subject line. And the script becomes a LinkedIn post.

Ask an AI to rewrite it for each platform, then add your own touch.

You don't need more ideas. You need to get more out of the ones that already work.

CLOSE

Save this and do it with your best video from last month.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

One reel splitting into five tiles: quote post, carousel, email, LinkedIn post, story · an AI chat rewriting the script

MARKETING TIP #27

DAY 27 OF 30

People Remember Two Moments

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Psychology	25-40 sec	Sends	Design the peak and the end

HOOK

Your customers won't remember your whole service. They'll remember two moments.

SCRIPT

Psychologist Daniel Kahneman found that people judge an experience mostly by its most intense moment and by how it ended. It's called the peak-end rule.

That's why a handwritten note in the box, or a small surprise gift, matters more than you'd think.

So design your peak, and design your ending. The unboxing. The last email. The final call with a client.

That's what they'll tell their friends about.

CLOSE

Send this to someone who runs customer experience.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

Daniel Kahneman · a line graph of an experience with the peak and end highlighted · a handwritten thank-you note in a package

MARKETING TIP #28

DAY 28 OF 30

The Page That Beats Your Website

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Local	25-40 sec	Saves	Not your website

HOOK

If you have a local business, your most important page isn't your website.

SCRIPT

It's your Google Business Profile. It's what people see when they search 'near me'.

Three things move it: fresh reviews with your replies, new photos every week, and the right categories.

Ask every happy customer for a review the same day, with a direct link. Most will do it if it takes ten seconds.

And reply to every review. The good ones and especially the bad ones.

CLOSE

Save this, or send it to a local business owner you know.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

A Google Maps 'near me' search · a business profile with stars and photos · a review request text with a direct link

MARKETING TIP #29

DAY 29 OF 30

Fake Timers Kill Trust

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Sales	25-40 sec	Comments	Fake urgency backfires

HOOK

Fake countdown timers are quietly killing your brand.

SCRIPT

People have learned that the timer resets when they refresh the page. Once they catch it, they stop believing anything else you say.

Real scarcity works. Limited spots because your team only has so much time. A drop that actually sells out. A price that really goes up on a date.

If it's true, say why.

If it's not true, don't say it.

CLOSE

Have you ever caught a fake timer? Tell us in the comments.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

A countdown timer resetting on refresh · a red 'trust' meter dropping · a real sold-out drop page · a calendar with a real price increase date

MARKETING TIP #30

DAY 30 OF 30

30 Days Of Posting

CATEGORY	LENGTH	BUILT FOR	ON-SCREEN TEXT
Content	25-40 sec	Follows	What 30 days really does

HOOK

Posting every day for 30 days won't make you go viral. Here's what it will do.

SCRIPT

It gives you 30 data points. After a month, you know which topics, hooks and formats your audience actually watches.

Most people quit around day 10, because the views aren't there yet. That's exactly when the data starts getting useful.

So track every video: topic, hook, watch time and sends. Do more of your top three, and drop your bottom three.

That's what we've been doing for the last 30 days. And we're not stopping.

CLOSE

Follow along. Tomorrow starts the next 30.

BACKDROPS FOR THE EDIT

A 30-day calendar filling up with checkmarks · a simple tracking sheet (topic, hook, watch time, sends) · top three rows highlighted green